

Citizen science approaches to collect and disseminate field data (e.g. KoboCollect)

Description

Citizen science approaches are tools used by the general public and provide the opportunity to collect large datasets in an easy and cost-effective way. Basic information on harvest and pest management can be collected by farmers and extension officers through easily designed tools administered by researchers. First promising research results have been acquired and need to be further developed.

Innovation Contributors

Contributor	Description
Christian Thierfelder	Email: C.Thierfelder@cgiar.org
Available in	in Malawi, in Zambia, in Zimbabwe.